MAFFS Enabled C-130 Aircraft Assisting Fire Suppression Efforts in the Northwestern United States

Story by: Senior Airman Thomas Cox
152nd Airlift Wing Public Affairs

BOISE, Idaho – Two modular airborne fire-fighting systems (MAFFS) enabled U.S. Air Force C-130 aircraft arrived at Boise Tanker Base, Idaho, September 9, 2022. One C-130H Hercules from the Nevada Air National Guard's 152nd Airlift Wing and one C-130J Super Hercules from the California Air National Guard's 146th Airlift Wing were called up to assist with wildland fire-fighting efforts due to increased fire activity in the Northwestern United States.

The request for support came from the National Interagency Fire Center (NIFC) to the Department of Defense's U.S. Northern Command, the major command that exercises operational control of the aircraft through U.S. Air Forces Northern (AFNORTH). The National Interagency Fire Center (NIFC) is the agency that assigns the aircraft to airtanker bases and assign the aircraft missions.

As of September 12, 2022, the MAFFS crews have flown a total of four sorties and dropped 11,556 gallons of retardant in support of suppression efforts for the Jordan Creek Fire in eastern Oregon.

These efforts contributed to the fire's containment and restriction of spread as it was no longer being reported on any situation reports regarding active wildland fires.

"We take to heart our team's effort to help protect property and critical infrastructure, with the ultimate goal of saving lives," said Lt. Gen. Kirk Pierce, commander, First Air Force - Air Forces Northern (AFNORTH). "Our MAFFS-trained team of professionals completed rigorous annual aerial wildland firefighting training in April with the USDA Forest Service to ensure they were fully prepared for the wildfire season."

In addition to the 146th and 152nd Airlift Wings, MAFFS program aircraft are also from the Air Force Reserve Command's 302nd Airlift Wing, Peterson Air Force Base, Colorado and the Air National Guard's 153rd Airlift Wing, Cheyenne, Wyoming.

The C-130 aircraft are equipped with the U.S. Forest Service's (USFS) MAFFS, can drop up to 3,000 gallons of fire retardant in less than 10 seconds across a quarter-mile line. The system slides into the back of the military aircraft, and retardant is released through a nozzle that is outfitted out of the rear left paratroop door.

The number of Modular Airborne Fire Fighting

Systems (MAFFS) equipped aircraft flights each year varies with wildland fire activity. Over the last 14 years, federally activated, military C-130s equipped with MAFFS have delivered more than 10 million gallons of fire retardant on wildland fires, an average of 757,000 gallons per year. In 2021, all eight aircraft were activated to federalized status during the second-busiest fire season in 49 years.

“We’ve trained and prepared well to be called into action this fire season,” said Col. Evan Kirkwood, 152nd Air Expeditionary Group MAFFS commander. “As citizen Airmen, we are always honored to help our community, state and nation. Last year was an unprecedented fire year and I continue to be humbled by the outstanding work showcased by the amazing Airmen I serve with. Our ability to continue contributing to this vital mission is only made possible by the outstanding interagency teamwork with all other agencies involved.”

Celebrating National Disability Employment Awareness Month

Article Courtesy of: 152nd Equal Opportunity Office

National Disability Employment Awareness Month is an opportunity to reaffirm the DoD's commitment to recruit, retain, and advance individuals with disabilities throughout our workforce.

It is also a time to recognize the many and varied contributions America's workers with disabilities make each and every day across the Nation.

People with disabilities are a diverse group that includes people with sensory, physical, and mental conditions. Disabilities cross lines of age, ethnicity, sex, race, sexual orientation, and socioeconomic status.

The Department of Labor has chosen the 2022 theme to be, "Disability: Part of the Equity Equation."

"A strong workforce is the sum of many parts, and disability has always been a key part of the equation," said Assistant Secretary for Disability Employment Policy Taryn M. Williams. "People with disabilities make up a wonderfully multifaceted group. By recognizing the full complexion of our community, we can ensure our efforts to achieve disability inclusion are, in fact, truly inclusive."

Have you heard about the Workforce Recruitment Program (WRP)? It is a nationwide recruitment and referral program that links federal and private-sector employers with college students and recent graduates with disabilities.

Candidates represent all majors and range from college freshmen to graduate and law students. Information about the candidates is compiled in a searchable database that is available to employers through the WRP website.

Since 1995, WRP has provided thousands of students and recent graduates with temporary and permanent employment opportunities.

As the nation's largest employer, the DoD recognizes its vital role in advancing disability awareness and employing thousands of workers with disabilities.

Each person brings distinctive skills and abilities to their job. Equity, dignity, respect, and cooperation among all individuals are essential values in the DoD work environment.

By increasing awareness for all members of the workforce, we build a culture that embraces diversity and inclusivity.

If you would like more information on how to celebrate diversity in your work area please visit www.deomi.org or contact the 152 Equal Opportunity Office in BLDG 56 Room 34, call 788-4649, or email Master Sgt.
